Second Harvest Welcomes Volunteers from iCare and Humana as Part of Hunger Action Month®

MADISON, WI, September 15, 2022 – Second Harvest Foodbank of Southern Wisconsin welcomed members of the staff of iCare and parent company Humana as they volunteered at its Madison facility today in honor of Hunger Action Month®; which runs the month of September. Sixteen iCare and Humana staff assembled boxes of assorted refrigerated product like eggs, butter, and yogurt. In the coming days and weeks their efforts will result in hundreds of families throughout southwestern Wisconsin receiving nutritional support.

“One of the many things that was reinforced by the pandemic was that we can’t end hunger alone,” said Michelle Orge, Second Harvest president & CEO. “It’s going to take everyone to take action to ensure that those facing hunger receive the support they need to thrive. We are grateful for iCare and Human’s commitment to our community.”

In addition to volunteering at the Second Harvest facility, iCare and Humana staff are also volunteering at Feeding America Eastern Wisconsin facilities in the Milwaukee and Fox Valley areas this week. In total, over the span of 5 dates up to 84 iCare and Humana staff will volunteer their time towards reducing food insecurity in our community.

“Food insecurity is a serious area of concern across Wisconsin,” said Tony Mollica, Humana’s Wisconsin Market President and iCare CEO. “Our associates work with vulnerable populations daily. Whether we are serving people who have low incomes, disabilities, or both, we’re working to increase healthy days with people who are at the greatest risk of worsening their health conditions through lack of nutrition. That’s why we’re proud to offer volunteers across the state, in Appleton, Madison and Milwaukee, to advance the work Feeding Wisconsin and their member food banks do to support our communities.”

Second Harvest and Feeding America Eastern Wisconsin are both members of Feeding Wisconsin and Feeding America.
